The OCL Portal goes online

Written by Birgit Demuth
Wednesday, 12 April 2006 14:57 - Last Updated Sunday, 19 September 2010 21:27

We are happy that we can now publish the announced OCL Portal! The OCL Portal already contains a few entries. We hope that many members of the OCL community will contribute to it in future!

The OCL Portal provides editing capabilities both to members of the academic/research OCL community and OCL users/developers of CASE tools in industrial environments. Please register and then you will (after the confirmation procedure) be able to add your own teaching material, projects, toolkits, case studies etc. Furthermore, we are always happy on feedback about this site and will make every effort to improve the site in accordance with your needs and suggestions.